Chapter 4: The Treatment of the Terminally Ill Patient

Article A: General

|---|---|
| Determining a patient’s medical condition | 8. (a) A responsible physician is authorized to determine that a patient is a terminally ill patient, if satisfied that the patient is suffering from an incurable medical problem and that his life expectancy, even if receiving medical treatment, does not exceed six months. |

- (b) A responsible physician is authorized to determine that a terminally ill patient is an end-stage patient, if satisfied that he is in a medical condition in which a number of vital systems in his body have failed and his life expectancy, even if receiving medical treatment, does not exceed two weeks.
 - (c) A determination of a responsible physician in accordance with this section will be made following a consultation with the experts treating the patient and if possible also with his personal physician.
- 9. Where a responsible physician has determined that a patient is a terminally ill patient
 - Determining the wish of the patient
- 10. (1) The responsible physician or a person authorized by him for this purpose, will make a reasonable effort to obtain all the pertinent data and the documentation for the determination of the patient's wish, pursuant to section 5(b) and (c) and all in accordance with the rules established for that purpose in the regulations;
 - (2) The responsible physician or a person authorized by him for this purpose, will check in the database whether according to the records therein, the patient has given advance medical directives, or appointed a representative; where a responsible physician, or a person authorized by him for this matter, has determined, based on the clarification by way of the database or in any other manner, that the patient has given advance medical directives, or appointed a representative, the responsible physician, or a person authorized by him for this matter, will add that information to the medical record conducted in respect of that patient.
 - (a) Where a responsible physician has determined that a patient is a terminally ill patient, and is incompetent, the responsible physician or a person authorized by him for that purpose, will notify the patient's representative, close person, and his guardian, if such exist and if they can be located with reasonable effort, that he intends to act in accordance with the patient's advance medical directives or in accordance with the representative's directives, as the case may be.
 - (b) A responsible physician will disclose medical information regarding an incompetent terminally ill patient and will enable examination of his medical record by a person whose opinion is required in order to adopt a decision on the treatment to be given to him in accordance with this Law.
 - (c) The provisions of any law prohibiting the disclosure of medical information will not pertain to the disclosure of information according to this section
 - 11. (a) Where a responsible physician has determined that a patient is a terminally ill patient, he will, as soon as possible, conduct a detailed consultation with the other caregivers who are caring for the patient, regarding the patient's medical condition and the medical treatment that should be given to him, and will decide on the matter, all in accordance with the provisions of this Law.
 - (b) Where a responsible physician has determined the type of medical treatment to be provided to the terminally ill patient, he will record the consultation process, the decision adopted and its reasons in the medical record; the provisions of this section are in addition to the documentation provisions of section 17 of the Patient's Rights Law.
 - 12. The responsible physician must periodically evaluate the competence, the medical condition, and the wish of the terminally ill patient; where a change has occurred in any of the above, he must adopt a new decision regarding the type of his medical treatment.
 - Reporting intent to act and disclosure of information
 - Deliberation and documentation
 - The duty to re-evaluate

Article B: A Terminally Ill Patient Requesting Extraordinary Life-Prolonging Treatment

| Maintaining status quo when applying to an institutional committee | 22. Should it become known to a responsible physician that there is a dispute regarding a decision or a determination concerning a terminally ill patient, and that a person has applied to an institutional committee or intends to apply to an institutional committee in order to resolve the dispute, the responsible physician will act in a way that enables the continued life of the terminally ill patient, provided that if possible, this should be done by non-continuous medical treatment. |

Article E: Palliative care

|---------------------------|---|
| Providing Palliative care | 23. (a) The responsible physician will make sure that everything possible is done in order to alleviate the pain and suffering of a terminally ill patient, even if this involves a reasonable risk of the patient's death, including by means of medication, pain killers, or psychological methods, nursing, and environmental measures, and all in accordance with the appropriate principles of palliative care and in accordance with the conditions |

and arrangements prevailing from time to time in the Israeli health care system, and in accordance with the wish of the terminally ill patient, pursuant to the provisions of this Law and pursuant to the provisions of the Patient's Rights Law.

- (b) The responsible physician will make sure that everything possible is done in order to alleviate the burden on the family members of a terminally ill patient and to ensure their well being during the patient's stay in the medical institution, all in accordance with the appropriate principles of social work and palliative care and in accordance with the conditions and arrangements prevailing from time to time in the Israeli health care system.

Article F: Treatment of the Terminally Ill Minor

| Authority of parents of a minor | 24. A minor's parent is authorized to represent him regarding his medical treatment, whether in the matter of prolonging his life or in the matter of refraining from prolonging his life; a guardian of a minor, who is a close person, is permitted to voice his position in this matter and the responsible physician is permitted to act in accordance therewith; if he has no parents, or the parents' guardianship has been revoked and no other guardian has been assigned for the minor, or if his guardian is not a close person, the institutional committee will make a decision in respect of him. |
| Hearing the position of a minor | 25. A minor who is a terminally ill patient is entitled to participate in the adoption of a decision regarding his medical treatment, if these two conditions are satisfied: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> (1) The minor is aware of his condition and requests to participate in the adoption of the decision regarding him; (2) The responsible physician determines that the minor's cognitive and mental capacity and maturity enable his participation in adopting the decision regarding him. |
| Giving medical information to a minor | 26. A responsible physician will give the minor information that pertains directly to his health or his medical treatment, if these two conditions are satisfied: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> (1) The responsible physician is convinced that giving the information, or a part of it, will not cause physical or mental harm to the minor, or endanger his life; (2) The responsible physician has determined that the minor's cognitive and mental capacity and maturity enable him to appropriately understand the information and its meaning. |
| Duty of consultation | 27. Decisions as stated in sections 25(2) and 26 will be adopted after consultation with the minor's parents, his guardian if appointed, the minor's caregivers, and the relevant physicians or experts, as appropriate, and if possible with his personal physician. |
| Resolving dispute in the matter of a minor | 28. (a) In the event of a dispute between the parents of a minor who is a terminally ill patient, or between them and the responsible physician, with regards to his medical treatment, an institutional committee will resolve the matter (b) Where there is a dispute between a minor who is a terminally ill patient and his parents, or between them and the responsible physician, with regards to his medical treatment, the following provisions shall reply: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> (1) Where the minor expressed his wish for his life to be prolonged the responsible physician will act in accordance with that wish, subject to the provisions of this Law; (2) If a minor less than 15 years of age has expressed his wish that his life not be prolonged, an institutional committee will decide on the matter. |

- (c) When an institutional committee discusses the matter of a minor who is a terminally ill patient, it should hear the minor’s position as well, if expressed, and the committee should also receive the particulars of the information that was given to the minor.
- (d) The institutional committee will take the best interests of the minor into account among its other considerations, and will be entitled to determine that his life should not be prolonged, if convinced that prolonging his life would not be in his best interests, subject to the provisions of subsection (b)(1).

Article G: Treatment of the Terminally Ill Protected Person

- 29. (a) In this Law, “protected person“ – a person regarding whom all of the following apply -
 - (1) He cannot, routinely, take care of his own matters because of a cognitive or a mental handicap;
 - (2) The condition as stated in section (1) existed before it was determined that he is a terminally ill patient;
 - (3) There are no valid advance directives or valid power of attorney relating to him.
- (b) If a protected person expressed his wish for his life to be prolonged the responsible physician will act in accordance with his wish, subject to the provisions of this Law; if the protected person expressed his wish for his life not be prolonged, an institutional committee will decide upon the matter; the provisions of sections 25, 26 and 27 will apply mutatis mutandis, as the case may be.
- (c) If the protected person's wish is unknown, and the responsible physician and the guardian have agreed to prolong his life – the responsible physician will act accordingly, subject to the provisions of this Law; in any other case – the institutional committee will decide in the matter of the protected person.
- (d) The institutional committee will consider the best interests of the protected person amongst its other considerations and will be entitled to determine that his life should not be prolonged, if convinced that prolonging his life would not be in his best interests, subject to the provisions of subsection (b).

Chapter 5: Advance Expression of a Wish

Article A: Methods of Expressing Advance Directives

- Advanced Expression of Wish 30. A person is entitled to express his wish in advance, regarding his medical treatment in the case of his becoming an incompetent terminally ill patient by providing advance directives, appointing a representative, or a combination of both, based on the provisions of this chapter and provided that he does so of his own free and independent will and not under family, social, or any other type of pressure.

Article B: Advance Medical Directives

- Advance medical directives 31. A competent person is entitled to give advance medical directives in which he explains his wish in detail with respect to his future medical treatment if it is determined that he is an incompetent terminally ill patient, all in accordance with the provisions of this Law.
- Medical information for giving advance medical directives 32. (a) Advance medical directives will be given after the person giving the directives has received from a physician or a certified nurse such medical information as is reasonably required for the sake of providing advance medical directives (in this Law – the information giver).

- (b) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (a), where a determination has been made pursuant to the provisions of this Law that a person is a terminally ill patient, he will give advance medical directives after receiving information regarding his medical condition from an expert physician, including medical information regarding his condition that is relevant for giving the directives as well as the medical information reasonably required for giving advance medical directives.
- Methods of providing directives and their documentation 33. (a) Advance medical directives will be given in writing, on an advance medical directives form, the wording of which appears in the First Supplement, signed by the directives giver in the presence of two witnesses who have no financial or other interest in respect of the directives giver, and who are not a representative, although one of the witnesses can be the information giver; the witnesses will confirm that the directives giver signed as stated by signing the form on the same occasion.
- (b) Advance medical directives may include the definition of significant suffering as provided by the directives giver and will also include -
- (1) A declaration that the directives are given of his own free will, based on his own understanding and discretion;
- (2) A summary of the medical information that was provided to the directives giver, as stated in section 32; the summary will be registered by the information giver, who will confirm by his signature that he gave the information to the directives giver and that he explained all the medical terms to the directives giver pursuant to the provisions of section 13(b) of the Patient's Rights Law.
- (c) Advance medical directives may be given in other ways, as determined by the Minister, with the approval of the Labor, Welfare and Health Parliamentary Committee, and they may be determined as stated in general or for specific types of cases that he determines.
- Validity of advance medical directives 34. (a) Advance medical directives shall remain valid for five years after the signing date of the advance medical directives form unless a shorter period was stipulated, and their validity may be extended for additional periods, each one of which shall not exceed five years; the extension will be effected by means of the extension form in the Third Supplement.
- (b) Advance medical directives that do not comply with all the provisions of this section or advance medical directives that have expired according to subsection (a) are not valid, but the responsible physician should examine them and may take them into consideration with regards to sections 5(c) and 14(c).
- Unclear or inappropriate directives 35. Where it is impossible to clearly ascertain the wish of a terminally ill patient based on the advance medical directives that he gave, or where the advance medical directives are inappropriate under the circumstances of the case, or in the absence of a representative or clear testimony of a close person –the institutional committee will resolve the matter.
- Absence of advance medical directives 36. The absence of advance medical directives does not, in and of itself attest to the wish of the terminally ill patient regarding his medical treatment or the withholding of treatment from him.

Article C: Power of Attorney

- Representative 37. (a) A competent person is entitled to appoint a representative using the form the wording of which appears in Supplement Two and in that power of attorney he is entitled to appoint a substitute for the representative.

- (b) The representative will be authorized to decide in his stead regarding the medical treatment that he will or will not be provided with if the terminally ill patient becomes incompetent; should the representative be unable or unwilling to fulfill his role at the designated time, the substitute representative will become the representative.
- (c) The power of attorney will specify the circumstances and the conditions under which the representative is authorized to make the above decisions.
- (d) Should the representative be appointed with regards to specific medical conditions or specific medical treatments – the person giving the power of attorney will receive medical information in accordance with the provisions of section 32, mutatis mutandis.
38. (a) A power of attorney will be given in writing, of free and independent will, based on understanding and discretion, and will be signed by the person granting the power of attorney and by two witnesses who have no financial or other interest in respect of the person granting the power of attorney, and who are not representatives, but one of them can be the information giver as stated in section 37(d); the power of attorney may include the definition of significant suffering as provided by the person granting the power of attorney and should also include -
1. A statement that the power of attorney is given out of free will, based on understanding and discretion
 2. Where the power of attorney granted as stated in section 37(d), the provisions of section 33(b)(2) will apply mutatis mutandis.
- (b) In the power of attorney the person granting the power of attorney will indicate that the representative will be authorized to adopt decisions in his place regarding his medical treatment in the event that he becomes an incompetent terminally ill patient, and he can specify the circumstances and the conditions under which the representative will be authorized to make decisions in his stead regarding all or some of his medical treatments
- (c) Appointment of a representative may be effected in other ways, to be determined by the Minister, with the approval of the Labor, Welfare and Health Parliamentary Committee, and they may be determined as stated in general or for specific types of cases that he determines.
- Validity of power of attorney 39. (a) A power of attorney will be valid for five years, and its validity may be extended for additional periods none of which shall exceed five years; the extension will become effective by using the extension form, the wording of which appears in Supplement Three.
- (b) Where the power of attorney does not specify the period of its validity, it will be valid for five years from the date on which it was given; where a person has not renewed a power of attorney that he gave, or the period of its validity is not determined, the power of attorney will not be considered valid, but the responsible physician should examine it and he may take it into consideration with regards to sections 5(c) and 14(c).
- Objection to a representative's decision 40. Where a person has a reasonable suspicion that a representative is not acting according to the wish of the terminally ill patient or out of a conflict of interests, he may apply to the institutional committee; where the institutional committee is satisfied that the representative's acts are based on motivations that do not reflect the wish of the terminally ill patient or out of a conflict of interest, it is entitled to determine the appropriate medical treatment for the terminally ill patient or to cancel the power of attorney.

Article D: General Provisions

| Duty to inform | 41. Where a responsible physician determines that a patient is a terminally ill patient, and that he is competent, the responsible physician will inform him regarding the possibility of giving advance medical directives or appointing a representative, or inform him regarding the possibility of updating advance medical directives or the power of attorney that he gave; for this purpose, an expert physician will provide him with the necessary medical information, subject to the provisions of section 13(d) of the Patient's Rights Law. |
| Possibility of Combination | 42. (a) A person is entitled to combine giving advance medical directives pursuant to the provisions of Article B with the appointment of a representative according to the provisions of Article C.

(b) In the advance medical directives and in the power of attorney a person is entitled to include directives for a case in which there is a contradiction between an advance medical instruction and a provision in the power of attorney.

(c) In the absence of a directive as stated in subsection (b) the advance directive will prevail; however, if the power of attorney was given at a significantly later period than the giving of the directive, the matter will be submitted for the resolution of an institutional committee that will determine whether the power of attorney prevails over the advance medical directive. |
| Modification and cancellation | 43. (a) (1) If advance medical directives were given and then given again, the advance medical directives most recently given will prevail; the same will apply to the appointment of a representative pursuant to this Law.

(2) Advance medical directives or a power of attorney may be cancelled by way of a form in the wording appearing in Supplement Four, in writing, in the presence of two witnesses or in another way as determined by the Minister pursuant to sections 33(c) or 38(c).

(b) Modification or cancellation in favor of the wish to continue to live in a medical emergency can be unwritten and one witness will suffice; provided that the directive regarding the medical treatment in said medical emergency and the testimony be documented in writing as soon as possible thereafter; when the medical emergency has passed, the valid advance medical directives or the power of attorney retain their validity, unless one of the following is the case:

(1) The directives or the power of attorney were cancelled pursuant to the provisions of subsection (a).

(2) The patient was unable, reasonably, to modify or cancel the directives or the power of attorney.
